	The SNP are a party committed to Scottish independence and the break-up of the UK. They cannot be trusted to act in the best interests of the UK if they were part of the UK government	If Scotland votes overwhelmingly for the SNP it is undemocratic to exclude them from having a say in how the UK is governed	Politicians who say that the SNP having a role in the UK government is dangerous are putting the future of the Union in jeopardy by alienating Scottish voters	If Labour were dependent on the votes of the SNP in parliament Scotland would be treated better than the rest of the UK by the government
